Senate passes Right-to-Work bill

SB61 will create more jobs and higher wages for NH workers

CONCORD, NH -- The Senate passed important Right-to-Work (RTW) legislation today that will help boost New Hampshire's economy. Under SB61, private sector employers would be prevented from requiring any employee to join or pay dues to a labor union as a condition of employment.

Senate Majority Leader Jeb Bradley (R-Wolfeboro) touted the benefits of the legislation saying, "SB61 is pro-jobs and pro-workers. It will create faster wage growth for Granite Staters just as RTW laws have meant higher economic growth in the twenty-seven other states that have adopted similar legislation. Becoming a Right-to-Work state will also make New Hampshire a more attractive destination for businesses looking to relocate. I believe Right-to-Work, along with lower business taxes and workers compensation costs, will make NH more competitive and attractive to grow and locate a business."
